MEMORANDUM FOR: Chief, Arms Control Intelligence Staff
FROM: Director of Central Intelligence
SUBJECT: Compliance Decision Document

1. I have two main concerns with the positions taken for the DCI on the violations paper. On mobility of ABM systems, it seems to me that if the component can be moved and quickly reinstalled there is a violation of the purpose of the treaty. In any event, it is a violation of the purpose of the treaty to have components in a mobile mode whether or not they have been moved. That's the way it seems to me.

2. On reload and SA-X-12 on nationwide ABM, I think the JCS is right in expressing serious concern about the totality of these features rather than confine ourselves to the technical evaluation of whether each one by itself may transgress a particular provision.
